Book discussion at Macomb County Library

CLINTON TONWSHIP, Mich. – Macomb County residents interested in learning what's behind the two-second glance that creates first impressions, are invited to discuss "Blink," by Malcolm Gladwell, at the January book discussion group at the Macomb County Library.

Gladwell, also the author of the best-selling book "The Tipping Point," discusses the "adaptive unconscious" which provides us with instant and sophisticated information to warn of danger, read a stranger or react to a new idea.

He also discusses the mechanics behind jumping to conclusions, and how marketers can manipulate first impressions.

The discussion group, which focuses on biographies and non-fiction, will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 23, at the Macomb County Library.

"Book groups are a great way to get people together to share ideas and discuss a common reading selection," said Darlene LaBelle, director of the Macomb County Library. "Patrons can expect a supportive environment and should feel free to express their opinions, positive or negative."
